

I WANT TO BELIEVE

G'day!

A little introduction: PAX AUS has decided to give us some creative control over the Wombat Theatre. GenerOZity is a loose collective of dorks who put on live fundraising events streamed to Twitch and have in our last few events raised $75,000 for charities, while taking $0 to cover operating costs. This is our first time running this kind of format and as the show runners, we need to stress how thankful I am for you joining us at PAX. Our primary focus is to entertain to incentive the audience to donate money to the official charity "cure for cancer".

We have six "GenerOZity" panels running this year during the PAX Weekend in the Wombat and I'll introduce you to the G-Files panel now:

The G-Files: Video Games Unsolved Mysteries

FRI 10/11 9:30 PM - 11:00 PM

WOMBAT THEATRE

There is a hidden dimension, beyond the pixels and polygons. Peel back the mystery by putting down the controller and looking behind the screen. It is a dimension as vast as any megatexture and as timeless as mario. This is the dimension of imagination. It is an area which we call the Wombat Theatre.

Do sidescrollers prove the earth is flat? Join us and let's see how far the rabbit hole goes.

[yes, I know this is a different tv gag, I'm sorry.]

Your mission panellists, should you choose to accept it...(please accept it)

Involves the entertainment of a large and rambunctious PAX audience seated comfortably in the Wombat theatre.

Our vision is to gather a bunch of game industry people in black FBI suits (or similar) and ham it up heavily as an excuse for the story tellers in our community to get creative and be a little less serious than your average panel. We can organise a projector for slides if you want a powerpoint or even sound effects/lighting effects for spookiness during the hour and a half.

I got inspired after reading the Shadow of the Colossus 'Theory of Intersecting Points' thread and a bunch of people who became obsessed with finding a secret that didn't exist and ended up trying to find a Abrahamic, mythical, and literary connections, that once again didn't really exist.

The G-Files theming can swim around to different themes. Some scary (or misunderstood) game characters/situations things that are not what they seem [Kapn in Animal Crossing stealing children]... or metaphors to talk about something with more depth than just shooting people in the face [See Jickle's Tetris Article]....

My first contacts were Jickle, Goldie and Joab Gilroy, they are all civilians, but highly capable professionals, and we've been in contact with a bunch of wonderful people who will receive this same message. We have one month until PAX and I'm going to work with you all as a group to help with any kind of support you will require.

As always, should you or any of the other panellists be caught or killed, Yug will disavow any knowledge of your actions. This message will self-destruct in five seconds. Good luck, Everybody.

[But that's just a theory, a game theory joke here]
